PALACIO DE ANNA, SPAIN

MARCH 2026

Mgr. Ing. Zdeňka Schormová, Ph.D.

Palacio de Anna is a palace situated in the village of Anna about 5 kilometres from Enguera. It was a palace of the Condes de Cervelión built in this place because in nearby Albufera de Anna was a rich source of water which was really precious and supported both the palace and the village.

The first mention about the building is from 1244 as a castle. It was reconstructed in 1604 in the era of Felipe III. Since that time Condes de Cervelión started to change the building for a family living and changed it into a palace in Muslim style and later in Baroque style. It was affected by the earthquake in 1748. Later the family sold it and new owners sold it to the townhall of Anna which reconstructed it and in 2007 opened it to the public. Sometimes it is called

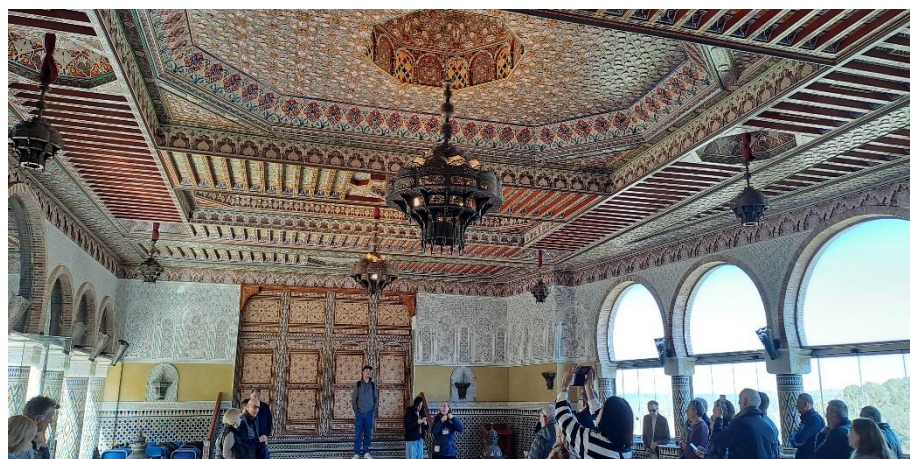

“Small Alhambra”
